Story: Our dear Shadow came to us only 6 short months ago after his owner inexplicably abandoned him. Senior dogs have a rough time in the adoption circuit, and because we'd just lost our beloved Keema and had two of everything, we welcomed Shadow into the family as if he'd always been with us. His new brother, Nanook, took to him immediately, even though Shadow was not very interested in wrestling with him. An older gentleman, Shadow spent much of his days snoozing on the cool stone floors, and his evenings lounging on one of his many beds. But he loved to sniff around at Crabtree swamp and see what was shaking around the neighborhood and along the railroad tracks. He was smart, sweet, and gentle, and proved that old dogs can definitely learn new tricks. Most of all, I think he loved us as much as we loved him. We miss you terribly, little big man.
